Newport Hospital
Lifespan. Delivering health with care.®

If the pandemic has taught us anything, it's that we're better when we work together.

At Newport Hospital, "together" means being a part of the state's largest academic health system and collaborating with world-class clinicians, researchers, and educators to ensure our patients have access to the very best care. Right here in Rhode Island.

Together also means partnering with an incredible donor family—people like you—whose generosity knows no bounds and enables us to advance our mission of delivering health with care.

Thank you for your unwavering support.

President, Newport Hospital

We've all heard the saying, "There's light at the end of the tunnel." The Newport Hospital team has shown tremendous resilience in the past year, and we look to the future with hope, optimism and a commitment to the health and well-being of our community.

Fortunately for us, the light at the end of the tunnel shines brightly because of people like you. As our loyal and generous donors, you help ensure that we have the resources we need to care for our community, even during the toughest of times. And for that, we are truly grateful.

In this issue of Newport Hospital, we highlight the many ways you have impacted patient care. With you by our side, and because of your support, we have been able to respond to our community's most pressing health needs and innovate new advancements in care. We shine a spotlight on our donors in the 2020 Honor Roll and share the thoughts of community leaders who speak to what motivates them to give to Newport Hospital.

For many, the desire to give back comes from experiencing the exceptional, compassionate care we provide—and there are stories about that within these pages too.

Thank you again for being by our side.

THE POWER OF GRATITUDE

It's very important that we purposefully name what we're grateful for.

There's such a palpable benefit to people's everyday lives when they have a feeling of gratitude on a regular basis—and the brain science backs it up. You could almost think of it as exercise for the brain. Those pathways can be reworked. For some people, it takes more work, more conscious attention. Our thinking can really change the way we view and perceive, and interact with the world. The more second nature that feeling of gratitude is on a regular basis, the better your overall well-being will be. Just having gratitude for each other and gratitude for what each of us can help the other with, whether it's hospital and donor or just two friends. If everybody's feeling gratitude on both sides, it will allow us to really accomplish our mission as a hospital."

—Preston Douglas, MD, Neurologist

MEETING THE NEEDS OF OUR COMMUNITY

Newport Hospital has evolved in size and stature since its humble beginnings in 1873. What we have not outgrown is our commitment to putting the community first. The hospital remains the cornerstone of health and healing in Newport County, continually advancing the way we are delivering health with care to ensure we can meet the diverse and ever-changing needs of Aquidneck Islanders. Here is a snapshot of how Newport Hospital has responded to the unprecedented challenges of the pandemic, while adding exciting new developments in patient care.

Combating COVID-19

With the novel coronavirus came new needs for Newport Hospital, and the donor community was there to help. From March to December 2020, more than 300 donors contributed $1,680,144 to the hospital's Emergency Preparedness Fund. These much-needed resources were used to purchase equipment, and to ensure the safety and excellence of care delivery to help combat the spread of the virus.

Items purchased included, among other things: respiratory pathogen panels, which are rapid tests that identify the most common viral and bacterial organisms associated with upper respiratory infection, including SARS-CoV-2, the virus that causes COVID-19; an electrostatic sprayer system to sanitize facilities and eliminate dangerous pathogens; an ultra-low temp, laboratory-grade vaccine storage freezer; and a Lucas chest compression system, which aids staff in maintaining guidelines-consistent compressions on patients during emergency transport and for advanced lifesaving therapies.

"I wasn't surprised by the support, because our donor family is incredibly generous and community-minded," says Michael Dawson, vice president, finance. "But I was blown away by how fast they mobilized."

Expanding Vanderbilt's inpatient services

The Vanderbilt Rehabilitation Center (VRC) at Newport Hospital has a four decades-long history of providing award-winning comprehensive rehabilitation services to Newport County and beyond. During the first surge of the pandemic, when Rhode Island Hospital shut down its inpatient rehabilitation services to use the space as a COVID-19 unit, the VRC welcomed their displaced patients, who were transferred here.

Stepping up to meet this need prompted Newport Hospital to accelerate its already-planned VRC expansion project, which was completed in May. The second largest inpatient facility in the state, the inpatient VRC now offers 28 private rooms, serving as the flagship inpatient rehab center for the entire Lifespan system.

Pharmacy will improve care transitions with delivery of discharge prescriptions right to the patient's bedside," says Michael Poirier, director of ambulatory care, pharmacy.

"Having our own pharmacy means we can provide an unprecedented level of integrated care," adds Christine Collins, VP, chief pharmacy officer. "Our pharmacists can consult with patients' physicians, nurses and other health professionals before the patient even leaves the hospital. This helps to ensure proper medication reconciliation, medication therapy management, and patient education."

A new center for Women's Health

In November 2020, Newport Women's Health opened a new office suite on campus, which will make it possible to expand access and services for obstetric and gynecological care. Conveniently located on the first floor of the Hazard Building, the new center offers 10 large exam rooms, an ultrasound room, and a consult room—all in a relaxing, modern, and welcoming environment.

"Having Women's Health right at the hospital makes for a much more integrated and enhanced patient experience," say Crista Durand, MBA, FACHE, president of Newport Hospital. "It also means we are better positioned to work with our Lifespan partners to access academic medical expertise and coordinate specialty care, and to collaborate more closely with colleagues throughout Newport Hospital, including at our esteemed Noreen Stonor Drexel Birthing Center."

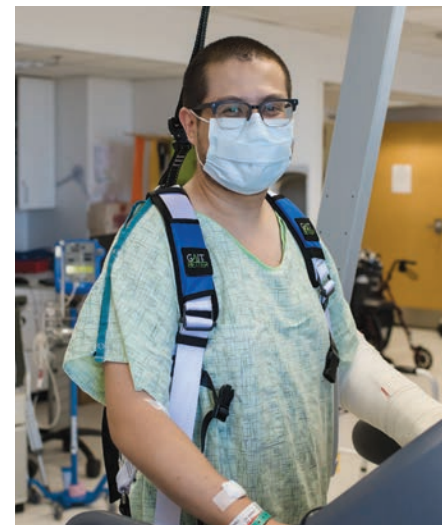

Opening an on-campus retail pharmacy

More than half of medication errors are due to a lack of coordination and continuity during patients' "transition of care" between different settings. For example, when they are discharged from the hospital and return home. This can lead to readmissions and poor outcomes. In May, Newport Hospital took a big step toward mitigating this risk by opening a new pharmacy on its campus. "The addition of the hospital-based Lifespan

Adding more primary care providers

Maintaining appropriate staffing levels is a critical component of meeting emerging community health needs. That is why last fall, Newport Hospital added three physicians and two nurse practitioners to its primary care team. "The demand for care at our practices is persistent and patient space fills up quickly," says Stephanie Maryeski, MD, director of primary care. "These additions will help us to both keep pace and expand access."

Today, all Newport Hospital practices embrace the patient-centered medical home model, where the primary care provider serves as the "quarterback" of a multidisciplinary team that provides cohesive, integrated care. "Having a primary care provider be your first access to the health care system and the person who knows your needs and history best is critical," Dr. Maryeski explains.

TOTAL JOINT PROGRAM PROVIDES 5-STAR CARE

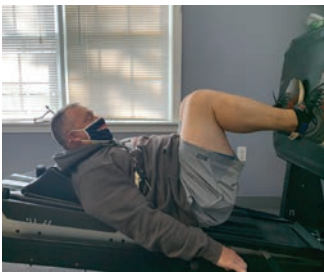

Total joint replacement medical director Michael Mason, DO, prides himself, and the program, on providing five-star orthopedic care to patients at Newport Hospital. Dr. Mason, who has been with the hospital since 2017, specializes in hip, knee, and shoulder replacement.

The program's individualized treatment plans and enhanced recovery protocols are part of its recipe for success to help patients get back to their normal lives as quickly as possible after surgery. As a result, the Total Joint Program also boasts lower than average complication and infection rates, and quicker than average discharge rates.

MEET JOHN

Name, age, location: John Kotfla, 61, Falmouth, MA.

Enjoys: John, a retired Massachusetts State Police sergeant, regularly participates in sports and fitness activities, including cycling.

Medical condition: He tore his right and left labra, the rings of cartilage that follow the outside rim of the sockets of the hip joint, after falling awkwardly during a physical fitness test at work. John was also dealing with long-term knee pain from a football injury that happened when he was 35.

Joints replaced at Newport Hospital: After having his right hip replaced by Dr. Mason at a Boston hospital, John “followed him to Newport” for a left hip replacement in 2018. In November of 2020, he returned for a total right knee replacement—and was able to go home the same day.

“It’s like if you find a good mechanic, you go to that mechanic. I didn’t just find a good orthopedic surgeon. I found a great one—probably one of the best. My goal now is to get back to the shape I was in 20 years ago, and I think I can do it.”

MEET VERONICA

Name, age, location: Veronica Mays, 59, Portsmouth, RI.

Enjoys: A talented quilter, Veronica is active in the Aquidneck Island community, including in her church.

Medical condition: She suffered from debilitating hip and knee pain resulting from osteoarthritis.

“I call it a miracle hip because I had it done on a Tuesday, and I was in church on Sunday. People were amazed. Now, I can really get around and do pretty much anything I want to do without pain.”

HELPING LOCAL KIDS LEAD HEALTHY LIVES

As children have spent the past year-plus living through an unpredictable pandemic, often lacking access to programs that help them grow and thrive, Newport Hospital and the Prince family are investing in efforts to get local kids moving again.

To make this happen, the hospital's Frederick Henry Prince Memorial Fund recently awarded a total of $135,293 in grants to 25 organizations. The Powered by Prince grants will support programs that help area kids lead healthier and more active lives.

The Fund was established in 2010 when Elizabeth Prince of Newport and her children—Guillaume de Ramel, Diana Oehrli, and Regis de Ramel—donated $3 million to Newport Hospital to fund activities for underserved, school-age children in Newport County. Grantees in 2021 will safely provide youth with a range of fitness and athletic opportunities, such as golf, swimming, biking, surfing and tennis, as well as nutrition education that will help them bond with nature and gardening, and eating healthy.

"There is no question that the last year has been very difficult and disruptive for our youth, particularly with a lack of activities," said Guillaume de Ramel. "We're really excited about this year's funded programs and continuing our mission to make a positive impact in the lives of Newport County children and youth."

Since its inception, the fund has provided more than $893,000 in grants for programs in Newport County.

“WHY I GIVE”

Newport Hospital is blessed to have the generous support of its community, receiving gifts from individuals, families, and businesses large and small who want to help ensure the very best in care can continue to be found on Aquidneck Island. And it is in large part thanks to this cumulative power of philanthropy that our hospital is able to keep pace with ever-evolving advances in medicine and science and enhance our physical space. We asked a number of community leaders to share why they give to Newport Hospital.

“Each and every day, residents and visitors to Aquidneck Island benefit from the high-quality, award-winning health care provided by Newport Hospital and delivered by staff that prioritizes patient care above all else. This is exhibited by their anticipation of emerging community needs, an intense focus on medical advances, and their unwavering concentration on compassionate care. Continuous financial support from the community is critical for the future of exceptional care at ‘our’ hospital, and our support has been well earned.”

—Janet L. Robinson, Newport resident and retired President and CEO of The New York Times Company

“With six brothers and sisters living on Aquidneck Island, my family has relied on Newport Hospital for care a number of times in recent years. In every case, we’ve found the nurses and doctors to be incredibly caring and professional, and the facilities state-of-the-art. And we’ve learned the hospital has attracted some of the world’s leading specialists in cardiology, orthopedics, neurology and more to its medical staff. It is truly amazing that such services are available so close to home. We’re fortunate to have this award-winning hospital at our doorstep, and I hope our community will continue to provide philanthropic support—large or small—to help ensure its success into the future.”

—Peter Walsh, Newport Hospital Corporator

“I cannot think of an asset more important to its community than a hospital, and where Newport Hospital truly excels is in not only understanding the needs of today, but also anticipating the needs of tomorrow. This is where philanthropy is so important and where donors know their support advances meaningful, tangible projects like the emergency department and musculoskeletal care. Donors appreciate the opportunity to align their philanthropy with specific initiatives and in support of the hospital’s greatest needs.”

—Marge Turley, local philanthropist

“One of the biggest challenges as a radiologist is adapting to the ever-changing technologies that emerge in our field. At Newport Hospital, however, this is made easy with the hospital’s mission to keep up with the latest and best advancements. We are vital to the community and to our neighbors who would otherwise have to travel to receive quality care. It is an honor to support and work at a hospital that is so driven to meet the needs of its patients.”

—Sufala P. Sapers, MD, Diagnostic Radiology Specialist, Newport Hospital

“The number of times I’ve heard how fortunate we are to have Newport Hospital right in our backyard is more than I could count, and no one ever wants there to be a time when it isn’t here for us. That is why I continue to support this local gem in our community. We’ve all come to expect the highest quality of care and an extensive range of services, including important education and outreach programs. And Newport Hospital continues to deliver on all counts.”

—Carol Bazarsky, Newport Hospital Foundation Board Trustee

Q&A WITH DR. TIMOTHY J. BABINEAU

Timothy J. Babineau, MD, is president and chief executive officer of Lifespan. He was recruited to Rhode Island in 2008 and led Rhode Island and The Miriam hospitals prior to taking the helm of the state’s largest health care system in 2012.

There’s light at the end of the pandemic tunnel—how did Newport Hospital rise to the challenge in the face of COVID-19?

I can’t overstate Newport Hospital’s response throughout the pandemic or how it continues to serve the local community. Despite how all-consuming COVID-19 has been, the hospital has progressed beyond the pandemic. Women’s Health Services has moved into a brand-new space, and the hospital’s cancer center has relocated from the fifth floor to the first, allowing for better access and comfort. And through donor generosity, the hospital acquired and employs two specialized electrostatic sprayer units that rapidly disinfect surfaces. No matter what is going on in the world around us, the hospital never loses sight of its mission to provide the best care possible to all patients.

Looking back at the community’s support to Newport Hospital this past year, what stands out to you most?

Aquidneck Island has always been an incredibly generous community. The heightened generosity of the Newport community was truly inspirational and encouraging during a challenging time for everyone. The unbelievable encouragement and support from the community—meals, supplies, parades, and donations—reinvigorated Newport Hospital and all Lifespan affiliates at a time when we needed it most.

What is your vision for Lifespan and its affiliate hospitals in a post-COVID world?

There is no question that we face tremendous opportunity as we look ahead to the future and build on the excellence we have right here in Rhode Island. I see Lifespan becoming one of the nation’s leading academic health systems, renowned for our exceptional, patient-centric care, groundbreaking clinical research, and as an attractive destination for the world’s top physicians, scientists, and health-care workers. In Newport, we have the state’s preeminent community hospital and an invaluable asset to life on Aquidneck Island. And it is imperative that we continue to ensure it flourishes.

FOUNDATION BOARD SPOTLIGHT

VICTORIA JOHNSON

Trailblazer and Passionate Advocate

Victoria Johnson has a lifelong connection to Newport Hospital and the City by the Sea. She was born at the hospital and raised here before leaving for Florida to attend college, where she earned a degree in health, physical education and recreation, and later a master's in curriculum, administration and education. On this foundation, Victoria built a remarkable 40-year career as a widely recognized and honored teacher, coach, and community leader.

In the late 90s, she returned to Newport and took the top job at Rogers High School—becoming the first female African American principal of a secondary school in the state's history. Victoria also joined the Newport Hospital Foundation Board of Trustees for the first time, serving on its Ethics Committee from 1999-2006. Rejoining this year, she is eager to share her time and talents once again, because giving back and getting involved are part of her DNA.

"My personal mission statement includes four facets that give my life purpose and meaning," she says. "Faith, health, family, and human kindness." Learned from her mother and reinforced by mentors throughout her life, Victoria says her work on the board enables her to put those cornerstones into practice.

"I love my Aquidneck Island community," Victoria explains, "and Newport Hospital is at the very heart of it. So, if my contributions, even in a small way, support the hospital's mission and foster fundraising success, I'm happy to do it... because the work here has a direct impact on patients and their families."

JUDY MCLENNAN

Partner, Philanthrope, Patient

Like many of our Foundation Board members, Juliette "Judy" McLennan has had a love affair with Newport from a very young age. A native of Washington, DC, she had her first summer vacation here when she was just six months old. "It quickly became like a second home for me," she says.

Now a longtime resident, Judy has fully immersed herself as a local nonprofit co-founder and community champion. As co-founder and president of the C. Thomas Clagett, Jr. Memorial Clinic and Regatta, a nonprofit named after her father, Judy and their board help to provide sailors with disabilities the opportunity to improve their skills and reach personal goals through world-class coaching and competition.

She's also a deeply passionate advocate of Newport Hospital. Whether through her generous philanthropy, work on gala committees, or serving on our board, Judy always stays connected. "It's been rewarding to see what a phenomenal, special jewel this hospital has become," she explains.

Judy's been a patient here, too; Michael Mason, DO, has performed two hip replacements and a shoulder replacement on her. "He's a gifted orthopedic surgeon," she points out. "Not only does he perform the operations, but he's involved in the design and development of the hardware. That speaks to the rare caliber of doctors we have here."

A retired government official with a long, stellar career in politics and diplomacy, Judy considers it an honor to assume the board secretary position and work alongside engaged colleagues. "The Foundation Board is comprised of doers," she says. "We're not just here to lend our name to something. We love the hospital and community and we're going to do everything we can to help ensure its success."

BARBARA VAN BEUREN

Committed Community Champion

A dedicated member of the Newport Hospital Foundation Board of Trustees, Barbara van Beuren serves as vice chair and is an unwavering champion for the importance of philanthropic support. Across decades, she has deepened her connection to Aquidneck Island's only hospital as one of its most active advocates.

What has kept you involved with Newport Hospital for so long?

I don't think there's any question that Newport Hospital is one of the most important institutions we have here. It is unusual for a community of this size to have such convenient access to a hospital of this caliber, and we need to make sure we keep it here and that it thrives. The hospital has evolved tremendously over the years and that's a testament to the leadership we have and their vision and drive to be the best of the best. Having a hospital like we do is also vital to families wanting to set their down their roots here—it's something people care deeply about when they move to a community.

You're very generous to the hospital, with both your time and treasure—what do you want people to know most about the importance of supporting the hospital?

The hospital has always been here and it may be easy to take it for granted. We cannot envision our community without it, and therefore we assume it will always be available. But the truth is we're incredibly fortunate. A lot of people think hospitals are wealthy—that is not the case. And small hospitals often struggle the most. I'd love to see everyone give what they can, gifts small and large. I feel strongly that everybody in the community needs to support Newport Hospital. It isn't about the amount; it is showing you care for a hospital that does so much to care for all of us.

Thank you to all members of the Newport Hospital Foundation Board of Trustees for your dedicated service!
