Newport Hospital

ewport Hospital's supporters are some of the kindest, most generous people I've ever had the pleasure of meeting. So, thank you for being part of this great team!

The hospital itself is part of a great team, too—and that's Lifespan.
As such, the people of Aquidneck Island always have direct access to a world-class academic health care system that offers the most advanced and highest quality medical care in the region.

Whatever care our patients need, wherever they need it, there's a Lifespan solution that has them covered. Your generosity helps make that care possible, and we are forever grateful for your support.

Crista F. DurandPresident, Newport Hospital

very day, I am grateful for the generous support we receive from caring people like you who make up our dedicated donor community. It is my privilege to bring you our 2018 Honor Roll of Supporters: individuals, businesses, foundations, and organizations who have demonstrated their commitment to the health and safety of Aquidneck Island in very real and tangible ways. So much of what we are able to accomplish here would not be possible without these wonderful philanthropists.

In this issue of Newport Hospital, I'm proud to share that we have made significant progress toward meeting the fundraising goal for our Beyond the Building campaign, which will transform our emergency department (see p. 4). Not only will these improvements translate into an even better hospital experience for patients and their families, it will enhance the working environment for the dedicated ED staff who make Newport Hospital their medical home.

Also within these pages you'll read about the newest capabilities in our Lifespan Cardiovascular Institute, made possible by the generosity of guests who attended last year's Summer Celebration as well as the exciting news that Dr. Jeffrey Gaines, a long-time physician in our emergency medicine department, has been appointed as Vice President, Medical Affairs and Chief Medical Officer.

Our hospital means so much to so many, both within our walls and beyond the building. But it is you who mean so much to all of us here. Thank you for helping us fulfill our mission of Delivering health with care and for being by our side every step of the way.

New Chief Medical Officer Announced

effrey Gaines, MD, a long-time Newport Hospital emergency medicine department physician, has been appointed Vice President, Medical Affairs and Chief Medical Officer.

After a national search, Dr. Gaines emerged as the top talent to help champion Newport Hospital's mission and move the quality platform forward. He has been a valued member of the emergency medicine team for almost a decade, known among colleagues for his outstanding skills and dedication to patient care, and among patients he is known for his empathy. He brings 14 years of clinical experience in emergency medicine to this role, along with years of service in leadership roles at Newport Hospital. In all these roles, his steadfast leadership and ability to balance and align the physician perspective with the strategic vision and goals of the hospital have been invaluable. He will step into his new role as of July 1.

We're 94% of the Way to Our Emergency Department Goal!

or Lisa Lima-Tessier, Director of Emergency Services at Newport Hospital, the impact of the sweeping expansion and renovations taking place at the emergency department can be summed up in a child's smile.

"We had two children in the ED's new behavioral health unit recently," Lisa explains of the newly opened four-bed pod, which is designed to soothe agitated patients. "These kids felt calm enough to play games with each other and the staff. We got smiles from them. That's incredible."

Providing the best possible patient experience is central to the transformation underway at the ED, the first phase of Newport Hospital's Beyond the Building capital campaign. Thanks to the generosity of donors, the campaign has raised $11.75 million so far, and construction to almost double the size of the emergency department is progressing rapidly.

With completion of the ED targeted for fall 2019 at a cost of $12.5 million, Newport Hospital must close the 6 percent funding gap this summer to complete the work.

"I can't thank our donor family enough for their dedication to exceptional health care on Aquidneck Island," says Crista Durand, President of Newport Hospital. "We're on the verge of setting a new standard for patient- and family-centered emergency care. To get there, though, we need the continued support of the community. Every donor makes a difference. Every donation matters."

Since breaking ground in June 2018, work to transform the emergency department includes a new wing with more and larger treatment rooms; a four-bed clinical decision unit for patients who may need more tests or a longer stay in the ED; and a secure behavioral health pod for psychiatric patients. We've tripled the number of triage bays and built a bright new family lounge. A new entrance, reception and waiting area will await visitors.

When completed, the ED will have 29 beds, up from 17, and cover 20,000 square feet—almost twice the space of the original design—alleviating wait times and the overcrowding that often necessitates treating patients in hallways. The final stages of the ED transformation will complete the additional treatment rooms, including those closest to the trauma room for the most acute patients.

"The ED is seeing more people than ever, almost 33,000 a year now, and their needs are increasingly acute and complex," says Anthony Napoli, MD, Medical Director and Chair of Emergency Medicine. "The work completed in the ED so far has created not just more space but better space. Patients have greater comfort, privacy, and security. And providers have an environment that allows them to practice the best emergency care possible."

"I can't thank our donor family enough for their dedication to exceptional health care on Aquidneck Island."

—Crista Durand

Every element of design in the ED responds to the universal needs of the community as well as specific and vulnerable populations.

"For behavioral health patients, we designed a secure and calming unit to preserve their dignity and privacy," says Pamela Crocker, Director of Facilities, Services and Planning. "Geriatric patients do better with softer lights, while children respond well to brighter colors, so we built flexibility into room design. Even the flooring has been redesigned to help patients and families navigate. Everything we've done, and will do, optimizes the delivery of care."

"Great things really do happen when great people come together," says Crista Durand. "Newport Hospital was founded on philanthropy 146 years ago and every milestone since has been achieved with the support of great and generous people. Today's Beyond the Building campaign is no different. We remain steadfast in our commitment to raising the bar on health care excellence in Newport County."

New Foundation Board of Trustees

omposed entirely of volunteers and led by chair Norey Dotterer Cullen and vice chair Edward D. Feldstein, the Newport Hospital Foundation Board of Trustees supports the hospital's mission and fosters fundraising success that has a direct impact on patients and their families. Recently, the Foundation welcomed five new community leaders to its ranks.

Gail Alofsin is the Director of Corporate Partnerships and Community Relations for Newport Harbor Corporation, where she has held several positions over three decades. Deeply committed to her community, Gail has established partnerships inclusive of many local nonprofits to generate support for their work and actively donates her time in several volunteer leadership roles.

Anne Hamilton is recognized as a philanthropist and volunteer whose contributions have had a profound impact on children, education, community health, and arts and culture in both Newport, RI and Philadelphia, PA. She is a longtime supporter of Newport Hospital and a consistent and generous co-chair of its annual summer celebration.

During a diverse career as a fashion consultant, photo stylist and art editor, Elizabeth W. Leatherman has made it a priority to give back to her community. Among her many affiliations, Elizabeth's gifts of time and treasure have touched hospitals, libraries, historical and preservation societies, social service organizations, and more.

A resident of Newport, Isabella Ridall is Partner and Business Manager of Newport Shipyard, considered to be New England's premier full-service marina. Throughout a career that's taken her from California to the Bahamas, Isabella has focused much of her time on education and programs that benefit youth. She is a trustee of St. Michael's Country Day School, and a past trustee of IYRS.

Barbara van Beuren is Managing Director and co-owner of Anbau Enterprises, a New York City-based real estate development company. She leads the firm's strategic and financial planning, and risk management. Prior to joining Anbau in 2002, she was Executive Director for the van Beuren Charitable Foundation.

Thank you to all members of the Newport Hospital Foundation Board of Trustees for your dedicated service!

Your Bones Are in Good Hands

dward "Ned" Corcoran has been a longtime supporter of Newport Hospital. In fact, the Middletown resident and his wife, Ruth, have championed fundraising and philanthropic efforts for Aquidneck Island's only hospital for more than 50 years. Ned was also born at the hospital, as were his four siblings, seven children, and grandchildren. Given that history, it's no wonder he has a fondness for and comprehensive understanding of the good work that goes on there. But it was a fall in his backyard that took Ned's appreciation of the hospital to a whole new level.

"I was out in my garden pulling weeds and cleaning up over the Labor Day weekend last year when I lost my balance and fell," Ned recalls. "I hit my leg on a big rock and fractured my femur up by the hip joint. It was a nasty break."

"My firsthand experience as a patient impressed upon me what a wonderful blessing it is to have a hospital of this magnitude in Newport."

—Fdward "Ned" Corcoran

Fortunately for Ned, Ross Budacki, MD, an orthopedic surgeon with Newport Orthopedics, knew exactly what to do. "Ned's type of break didn't require a hip replacement," he explains. "The best fix for him was to insert an intramedullary rod to help align and stabilize his fracture."

Since they began seeing patients in January of 2017, Newport Orthopedics, a Lifespan Physician Group practice, has found the "best fix" for more than 2,500 people. Their fellowship-trained and board-certified physicians provide specialized care throughout diagnosis, treatment, surgery and rehabilitation, and their staff does whatever it takes to get patients back to their normal activity levels and their everyday lives.

"We care for a full range of patients from children through adults," Dr. Budacki notes. "Whether they're student athletes or weekend warriors with a sports injury, or older folks in need of an upper or lower joint replacement, we employ the same personalized, comprehensive approach. We work with patients, listen to them and figure out the best way to help them."

For Ned, that included a successful surgical procedure and continuing outpatient rehab at Newport Hospital's Vanderbilt Rehabilitation Center. "It's been a long recovery process, but I'm getting better every day, thanks to Dr. Budacki, his team and Newport Hospital." Ned adds that the facility and operations at Newport Hospital were tremendous, and the level of care he received was extraordinary. "My firsthand experience as a patient impressed upon me what a wonderful blessing it is to have a hospital of this magnitude in Newport County."

Local Organizations Are Powered by Prince ith a mission to enhance the lives of children and families across Aquidneck Island, Newport Hospital's Frederick Henry Prince Memorial Fund recently awarded a total of $121,100 to 20 local organizations. The "Powered by Prince" grants support a variety of programs that help area kids lead healthier and more active lifestyles.

The F.H. Prince Memorial Fund was established in 2010 when Elizabeth Prince of Newport and her children—Guillaume de Ramel, Diana Oehrli, and Regis de Ramel—donated $3 million to Newport Hospital to fund activities for children who otherwise might not have access to such programs. Grantees for 2019 will provide youth with a range of unique nutrition education, fitness, and athletic opportunities.

"Aquidneck Island is home to so many incredible programs dedicated to the well-being of our community's children and youth," said Guillaume de Ramel. "It is a privilege to support projects that truly make a difference in the lives of others, and to do so in partnership with Newport Hospital."

Since its inception, the fund has granted more than $627,000 to organizations in Newport County.

A Hospitalist is Like the Captain of a Ship

ngus Ross of Portsmouth, RI, is a professor at the US Naval War College and a retired British Royal Navy commander. This past January, he got seasick for the first time—and he wasn't even on a boat. "My whole world was spinning," he recalls, "I was dizzy, nauseous, and vomiting . . . completely incapacitated." Angus was experiencing vertigo caused by labyrinthitis, an inner ear disorder that's usually brought on by a viral or bacterial infection. A hospitalist at Newport Hospital helped diagnose Angus's condition after conducting a battery of tests and determined that specific medication and vestibular therapy was the best treatment option.

If you're not familiar with the term, a "hospitalist" is a physician who practices exclusively within a hospital setting and leads the patient's care team, coordinating and managing everything from admission through discharge. "As medical care continues to get more complex, you really need to have someone there 24/7/365 who is expert at navigating the everchanging hospital setting," says Hector Derreza, MD, Medical Director of Hospital Medicine at Newport Hospital. "That someone is the hospitalist, who functions like the captain of a ship." Hospitalists collaborate and communicate with specialty physicians and ancillary departments, and—since the hospital is their office can check in with patients more frequently than primary care physicians or visiting doctors. "The care I experienced as a patient at Newport Hospital was comforting" says Angus. "I couldn't have felt safer or been in more capable hands."

Three Angels Fund Changes Lives

ast December, the Three Angels Fund presented a $35,000 donation to the Lifespan Cancer Institute at Newport Hospital to support the hospital's outpatient IV therapy lab and patients undergoing cancer treatment. The organization's annual fundraiser at Kempenaar's Clambake Club, has generated nearly $300,000 for the hospital since 2010.

"The impact the Three Angels Fund has had, and continues to have, on our patients and cancer program is significant," said Crista F. Durand, president, Newport Hospital. "We are so grateful for their generosity and commitment to lifesaving cancer care." The Three Angels Fund was established by cousins Andrew Bulk and Jennifer Lopes to honor the memories of their aunts Eileen Bulk, Ann Pine, and Nan Bulk, who fought courageously before losing their battles to cancer within 17 months of each other. To carry on their legacy of caring, the fund provides assistance to others undergoing cancer treatment. Over the years, the fund's support purchased new infusion chairs and comfort items for patients, and has helped the hospital provide patients with no-cost complementary therapies of Reiki and massage, medical supplies not covered by insurance, and extra supports such as wigs and utilities assistance.

Healing is Job One at Vanderbilt visit to the hospital rarely inspires a career move, but it did for Kim Valcourt, a medical assistant from Bristol, RI. Kim was so impressed by the level of service her husband Mike received at the Vanderbilt Wound Care Center at Newport Hospital, she changed jobs to go work there.

In September of 2018, Mike was being treated at a different hospital for cellulitis, a potentially serious infection. "They were telling us his wound was healing when clearly it was not," Kim remembers. Fortunately, Kim's aunt, a retired nurse, told her about the center at Newport Hospital and suggested Mike seek treatment there.

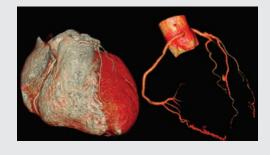

"I was truly moved by the comprehensive, patientcentered care he received, and the compassion the doctors and support staff showed us," she recalls. "So once Mike was home and feeling better, I said to myself, 'That's the place where I want to work!'"

Of course, not everybody who goes to the center ends up filling out a job application. But they're all very pleased with its approach to care. The program uses advanced treatments and state-of-the-art technology to treat chronic wounds—ranging from trauma and nonhealing surgical wounds, to minor burns and pressure ulcers—and boasts a 94 percent healing rate, which is well above industry benchmarks.

"We're a very cohesive team, more like a family, actually," says Kelly Hayward, the center's program manager. "With our staff, it's not a case of 'this is my patient' and 'this is your patient' . . . they're all OUR patients."

Impact of Philanthropy

wo of the newest and most sensitive tests used for detecting coronary artery disease are now available to patients at Newport Hospital. Made possible by the generous $533,550 raised at last year's Summer Celebration, the Lifespan Cardiovascular Institute at Newport Hospital is able to offer both coronary CTA (computed tomography angiogram) and coronary calcium scoring tests.

Coronary CTA is a noninvasive test that visualizes the coronary arteries that supply blood to the heart, allowing physicians to see precisely whether and where there is a blockage or narrowing. For patients with chest pain or shortness of breath, this can determine if the symptoms are related to inadequate blood supply to the heart. "It actually takes longer to get to Providence [from Newport] than it does to perform the test," says Joseph Weiss, MD, PhD, who is pleased to be able to offer this testing to patients on Aquidneck Island. Calcium scoring uses CT technology to identify the buildup of calcium deposits, or plaque, in the heart's arteries. Calcium scoring is a valuable method for evaluating the risk of heart attacks in patients who do not have symptoms of chest pain or shortness of breath but may have a family history of heart disease or other cardiac risk factors. The more extensive the deposits, the greater the likelihood of trouble down the line. "When it comes to coronary artery disease, early intervention is absolutely critical and these enhancements to the services available at Newport Hospital will help save lives," says Dr. Weiss. "The impact of philanthropy should not be underestimated."
